Robert F. Cathcart, M.D. Key Articles, 1975-2005

Orthopedic surgeon Robert F. Cathcart III is the inventor of the Cathcart Elliptical Orthocentric Endoprosthesis, a replacement hip-ball joint still in widespread use today. Some physicians report it to be superior to other similar devices. <http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/2661497>

Dr. Cathcart has successfully treated over 20,000 patients with very large doses of vitamin C, sometimes administering over 150,000 mg per day. A short biography of Dr. Cathcart is posted at <http://orthomolecular.org/hof/2008/cathcart.html>.
